hello, I'm David Shrigley. I work drawing, painting, sculpture, installation, photography, animation, and print. I publish books, produce music, occasionally design t-shirts, and creates all manner of other paraphernalia. I want to provide a unique art and I want to provide experience/experience that all people can access. I have held solo exhibitions in museums around the world, and my work can be seen in famous collections, including the Museum of Modern Art (New York), Tate Britain (London), and the National Gallery of Denmark (Copenhagen). Art is for everyone and I welcome everything!

With the face of a philosopher, this bowl can be a vase for flowers or an all-around bowl for soup, snacks, and sweet candies. Designed lovingly by David Shrigley, it will be the perfect object for your living room, kitchen, and studio. Meet a philosopher who is ready to talk to you anytime, anywhere!

The Ridiculous Inflatable Swan-Thing first started life as a simple line drawing, developing into a limited edition sculptural piece cast in polyurethane resin. Soon after the Swan-Thing found life in an inflatable form. Its elegant neck has extended up to 13 metres tall in various installations internationally, but here we present the more modest 90cm tall version, created by our friends Third Drawer Down. Enjoy the Ridiculous Inflatable Swan-Thing as a toy, a pool float or as an inflatable sculpture placed in your home. Definitely not a life-saving device.

A cast porcelain sculpture in the shape of a left foot. This curious object can be displayed as a sculpture in your home or can be used more functionally. A shallow dip in the ankle is ideal to put small things in: paperclips, serving salt and other spices or a delicious boiled egg.

Cast porcelain sculptural salt & pepper shakers labelled Heroin and Cocaine. These shakers were originally commissioned for the Collection Lambert in Avignon in 2000 and specially re-commissioned for David Shrigley's major solo exhibition at London's Hayward Gallery in 2012. This latest edition is created by our friends Third Drawer Down. Can be displayed as small sculptures in your home as well as used functionally on your table or in your kitchen.

der starter kann aus einem gemeinsamen arbeitsmeeting aka kick-off bestehen. er kann aber auch aus einem ersten kennenlernen sein. oder aber auch aus einem konkreten, schriftlichen briefing. hier versuchen wir alles rund um die aufgabenstellung, die marke selbst, ihre ziele und visionen, produkte, dienstleistungen oder services, kurz: ihre rezeptur und dna zu erfahren. wir stellen fragen, die mal mehr und mal weniger angenehm sind, um der sache auf den grund zu gehen. diesen input nehmen wir mit, um ihn anschließend in der agentur unterzumischen. im nächsten schritt vermengen wir ihn dann mit unserem kommunikativen knowhow, denken über gehaltvolle lösungswege nach und füttern ihn so lange, bis der kreative starter bereit für den backvorgang ist.
